Acknowledgements

My deepest gratitude to the legions of people who have helped make Mugabe, My Dad and Me possible. From Alison Holder who heard the idea first and encouraged and held the candle in the wind. Elyse Dodgson for her enthusiasm for it. Richard Twyman, Jennifer Baskt and everyone at English Touring Theatre for being such cool big siblings, keeping an eye on Alison and me in the shaky first few steps all the way to various incarnations of the play. The Arts Council for the DYCP grant that made it possible to travel to Zimbabwe and commune at my father's grave. Tawanda Mudzonga and all the people in Zimbabwe who agreed to be interviewed in order to help me understand a great deal more of the political history and life on our beloved land. The Young Vic, especially Sue Emmas, for arranging time for me to work with the Genesis Directors all of whom were generous in their commitment to the potential of the play. I thank York Theatre Royal, in particular, the trinity of Tom Bird, Thom Freeth and John R. Wilkinson who are the principal players in whatever success this play achieves.

A writer needs a cadre of supportive friends, for this play it came in the form of Sibusiso Mamba, Annabel Arden, Jo Parker, Aicha Kossoko, Steven Greenhalgh, Hannah Khalil, Topher Campbell, Cassie Bryson, Dawn Walton, Antonia Kemi Coker, Mojisola Adebayo, Nicolai Hart, Arne Pohlmeier, Zoe Guzy-Sprague, Lennon Mhishi, EatingInWhiteSpaces, Ayesha Casely Hayford, Michael Pearce, David Sabel, Hedda Beeby, Millicent Chapanda, everyone at Shepperd-Fox and my brilliant literary agent Jennifer Thomas at United Agents. I send this play out as an extension of the love and support I have received from all my friends and family, not least my mother R.B. Ganzva and Adam, who makes all things magical.

A Luta Continua.
