INTRODUCTION

FROM THE COMPILER

Enser's Filmed Books and Plays 1928–2001 remains the only comprehensive printed compendium of motion picture and television adaptations of books and plays. This latest edition includes several thousand new listings, covering the years 1992–2001 and representing live-action and animated feature films and made-for-television serials and miniseries.

An essential reference tool for the serious film buff or literary researcher, Enser's Filmed Books and Plays includes films made in the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Australia and non-English-speaking countries. The cross-indexed information makes it easy to trace a particular film, a particular author or, where applicable, the various adaptations of a particular book or play.

Selection criteria established earlier have remained in place in this edition. Any close adaptation of a book or play has been included, but we have excluded titles that were so loosely based on the original as to be unrecognizable. In those instances where a film's release year was different in the US from the UK, the earlier date has been taken, along with the appropriate country of origin. On a number of occasions a filmed version of a stage play was itself based on another work. In such cases, an attempt has been made to include the original source and the stage version.

In this edition, we elected not to include notations for video availability. Virtually all movies released in recent years are ultimately marketed in this format, along with a number of made-for-television titles (especially those produced for cable networks), but general accessibility to older titles often becomes more difficult, as these go 'out of print' in the same way as books. Also, new DVD technology is just now catching up with both contemporary and classic film titles, so an accurate up-to-date listing would have been impossible to compile. A recommended resource for checking video/DVD availability for any film title is the Internet Movie Database (IMDb.com).

For a good portion of the twentieth century, motion picture production was dominated by a small group of powerful studios – names still familiar today, such as Universal, Paramount, MGM, Columbia and Warner Bros. These companies still exist, but they are no longer the only means of film production. Far from it, in fact. Studios still produce feature and made-for-television films – more made for cable than for network broadcast these days – but they also serve in large part as distributors for independently produced projects.

As the major film studios lost their iron-clad grip on production and distribution, the independent film earned new prominence and respect. Independent films, which can range from a very low-budget movie to a multi-million dollar enterprise, may be financed by a number of companies, often from a number of different countries. There are also several independent companies which have achieved distinction on both the big and small screens in recent years, such as Miramax and HBO. Anyone who has been to the movies in recent years can recall seeing a string of company names leading off a film's opening credits (and that doesn't even include the 'a film by' credit often awarded to a director and above-the-title actor and actress listings!). For space considerations, we have listed only one or two production entities for each new title in this edition of Enser's Filmed Books and Plays, endeavouring to choose those most recognizable or traceable.

It should also be noted that in a number of instances independent companies – which sometimes were formed to produce a single movie – have ceased to exist by the time this volume has gone to print, so a particular company may be difficult or impossible to trace. This may be especially true for older listings which have been carried over from earlier editions. Again, the internet, via both the Internet Movie Database or a more general search, can be a valuable tool for tracking further information about any individual title.

Enser's Filmed Books and Plays aims to be correct and complete up to December 2001. The publishers would encourage readers to inform us of any missing items, so that they can be incorporated into a future edition. Also welcome would be general comments and suggestions about the structure and content of the book.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

The book is divided into three main sections with additional lists and indexes.

Film Title Index

This listing is the heart of the book, assuming that the reader has the name of a film in mind and wants to find out certain basic facts about it; but more importantly, whether it is based on a book or a play, which they can then read.

The index is arranged alphabetically under the film's title and gives much information about the film and its published source, such as country of origin, the director, distribution or production company, whether the title of the book and film are different, or whether the filmed version is perhaps a musical, a made-for-TV series, or available on video.

Remember that the articles 'The', 'A' or 'An' are not taken as being part of the film's main title, but are placed at the end of the title. Foreign language films are listed most frequently under their English titles.

Title of film	Kiss Me Kate	Date of release
Studio name and country of origin	MGM (US) 1953 dir. George Sidney	Director's name
British, etc. title, where applicable	M MILBERG (US) 1958 dir. George Schaefer	Author and title of book (if title is different from film title)
Abbreviations as listed below	GB title. TV(US)
Means adapted from a play	Shakespeare, W. Taming of the Shrew, The P	Author of film
	Spewack, S. and Spewack, B. P

Author Index

This listing is for the use of readers who want to see whether their favourite authors' books have been made into a feature film or a film for television.

The Index is arranged alphabetically by author with a further alphabetical arrangement of each author's works.

Change of Title Index

It happens very often that a new title is given to a book or play when it appears as a film. This index pulls out all those books and plays where this has occurred.

In addition to these three main sections there are three supplementary indexes which reflect reader interest in made-for-TV movies, miniseries and serials, musical films and animated films. Each of these indexes is arranged in alphabetical order and the reader can then refer back to the main entry for that film to obtain details of it and its original published source material.

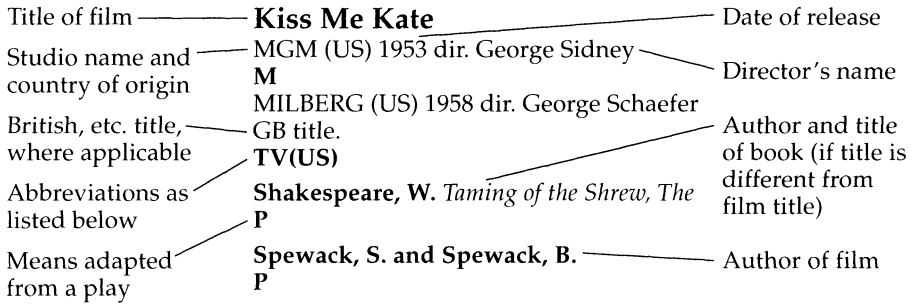

Two lists which give general help to an understanding of the book are included. The List of Abbreviated Production and Distribution Company Names, at the end of the book, will be useful for identification purposes. It has proved difficult to keep an exact record of companies within this fast-moving industry, particularly with regard to the production of films made for television or foreign language films, and the companies linked to some of the older films. However, wherever possible the abbreviated name and full name have been supplied. The List of Country Abbreviations (overleaf) lists the names of the countries in which films have been made, both in their abbreviated form (as it appears in the main entries) and in full.
